Biographical/Historical

The Albany Symphony Orchestra (ASO), originally named the People's Orchestra of Albany, was founded in 1930 by conductor John Carabella. It is the oldest professional orchestra based in New York's Capital District, and performs annually in venues across the region.

David Alan Miller serves as the Principal Conductor and Music Director for the orchestra, a role he has held since 1992. The ASO also creates, records, and disseminates current music to reach the greater community and establish an enduring artistic legacy. The orchestra has released more than twenty albums and has been awarded several Grammys for their performances.
