Biographical Note

The Ashley/Van Alstyne/Fitch/Hull Family Papers contain the records of more than twenty-seven members of seven families connected by marriage over six generations whose lives were centered in Schodack Landing, a village along the Hudson River in Rensselaer County, New York. Albertine Hull Miller, a fifth-generation family member, compiled in the 1920s an extensive genealogical notebook which can be found in Box 5, folder 107. A brief family chart, which includes and places most of the correspondents in this collection, can be found on page 5 of this finding aid.

Scope and Content Note

The Ashley/Van Alstyne/Fitch/Hull Family Papers span the period from 1799-1981 and contain correspondence, documents and photographs relating to the lives of members of the Ashley, Baldwin, Fitch, Hull, Miller, Spencer and Van Alstyne families. The collection is divided into five series: I. CORRESPONDENCE; II. PERSONAL PAPERS; III. FINANCIAL PAPERS; IV. PHOTOGRAPHS; V. SCRAPBOOKS. Kept for many years by Albertine Hull Miller, the papers were given to the McKinney Library in 1997 by her granddaughter, Hildreth Houston Spencer, in memory of Ms. Spencer's mother, Cornelia Hull Miller Spencer, and her great-great aunt, Elizabeth Frances Hull. Ms. Spencer's gift to the Albany Institute, which is part gift and part promised bequest, also includes furniture, decorative arts, textiles, and other objects that were owned, made, and used by the families. In addition to the papers, the McKinney Library received a collection of the families' books which have been catalogued separately and housed in the Library's Special Collections room; a book list can be found as Appendix I of this finding aid.

Readers should also be aware of the Schemerhorn, Van Alstyne and Fitch Business Papers held by the New York State Library's Manuscripts and Special Collections division. This archive (collection number HB 12039) was acquired in 1948 and contains some family correspondence (primarily of Albertine and Frederick Fitch's family) and personal material in addition to ledgers, day books, memo books, receipt books, inventories, and land and legal papers dating ca. 1800-1870; a finding aid for this collection is available from the New York State Library.

Series I. CORRESPONDENCE, (three boxes) contains letters written to family members, primarily from other family members, during the period 1799 through 1981. It is arranged alphabetically by the recipient. The largest portion of the letters were written to Mary Ashley Van Alstyne by four of her seven children, her half-sister Lauriette Ashley, and various other relatives. Widowed in 1834, she remained in Schodack Landing, eventually leaving her property to her second daughter, Albertine Van Alstyne Fitch, the only Van Alstyne child who remained in the area. Four of the Van Alstyne children moved to Texas and Arkansas, married, and raised their families there; many of their letters to their mother describe their travels, experiences and news of their families.

Sarah, the eldest daughter, left Schodack Landing in 1838 to visit her maternal uncle, Chester Ashley, a United States Senator from Arkansas. Her letters to her mother tell of her trip south; on the way she toured Washington, D.C., met New York State Governor Fulton, and, with him, visited President Van Buren at the White House. Once in Little Rock, she married Judge Davis Baldwin, and settled there for the rest of her life. William, the eldest son, moved from New York City to Galveston, having secured a job there as a bookkeeper. He married Maria Wright of Houston and remained in Texas until his death in Houston in 1867. Becoming an advisor to his mother upon the death of his father, William wrote letters filled with opinions on managing the estate and other monetary affairs. A third daughter, Lauriette, died when she had not yet reached twenty years. There is little information on John Alexander Van Alstyne except for a single letter written to his mother from Anderson, Texas, announcing the birth of his son in 1851. No letters exist from the seventh child, Mary, but family records and references in other letters confirm that she too settled in Texas after marrying Paul Bremond of Houston. The Van Alstyne's sixth child, John, died at less than one year.

The business correspondence in Series III and comments in her children's letters seem to indicate that Mary Van Alstyne was not a shrewd businesswoman. The affairs of her husband's estate were on-going over a period of years and seem to have remained unsettled even at her death in 1852. At one point Chester Ashley lent financial support to his sister, and the Van Alstyne children continued to give advice and support in their letters. Correspondence also reveals that Mary Van Alstyne travelled to Texas and Arkansas to visit her children and brother.

There are a few letters written by and to Lauriette Ashley. A half-sister of Mary Van Alstyne, she never married and kept house for their father, William, until his death in 1847. As an adult she suffered emotional problems from which her family felt she could not recover. One manifestation of her illness was the exhibition of such intense religious feelings that she annotated books with eucharistic symbols and wrote out spiritual ramblings in letters and on scraps of paper (as well as several business ledger books at the New York State Library which are overwritten with her zealous thoughts). Lauriette Ashley spent a month at the Utica Hospital for the Restoration of the Insane; after her return to Schodack Landing she lived out her life in the home of her niece Albertine Fitch.

Mary Van Alstyne's father, William Ashley, was a sea captain and an early settler of Hudson, NY; the series holds letters and bills of lading that show his dealings with his son-in-law's retail business.

An important group of letters in the correspondence series is that of nearly 150 pieces written by William Seward Hull (1839-1898) during his service in the Civil War. Hull joined the 128th Regiment of New York Volunteers on September 5, 1862, and was mustered out on July 12, 1865. His letters are written primarily to his mother, Cornelia Lasher Hull, though some are also addressed to his father Hiram. He also wrote to his three young sisters Mary, Elizabeth and Iantha. Hull's letters are highly personal, giving his views of fellow soldiers, politics, generals and racial matters, as well as news of troop movements, engagements and expeditions. A chronology of Hull's travels and engagements, most of which were in Louisiana and the South, was drawn up from his letters and appears as Appendix II of this finding aid. Hull appears to have been a model soldier and was offered a promotion to serve with a black regiment, an offer that he declined. Series II holds Hull's military appointment papers and two commemorative broadsides relating to his regiment, as well as ephemera (such as a Confederate muster roll printed on necessity paper) from the time of his service. Photographs of Hull taken during his military career can be found in Series IV, including one tintype portrait with his dog, Dandy, whom Hull adopted in Louisiana and kept with him until they were mustered out.

A second group of wartime letters can be found in Box 3, folders 53-55, written by Seaman

2nd Class Warren Seward Miller to his mother Albertine Hull Miller during World War I. Miller was stationed in Illinois, Philadelphia and England, but never saw battle.

Series II. PERSONAL PAPERS (three boxes) holds documents, albums, invitations, diaries and clippings kept by the family members. Two friendship albums from the 1830s given to sisters Lauriette Van Alstyne and Albertine Van Alstyne Fitch by their father can be found here, as well as an autograph album kept by Sarah Fitch Hull while a student at the Pittsfield Female Collegiate Institute. Albertine Van Alstyne Fitch's prenuptial agreement for her 1834 marriage to Frederick Fitch is filed in this series (and a piece of her wedding cake, along with her wedding shawl and stockings, can be found in the Curatorial Collections). The series contains family material gathered in the 1920s by Albertine Hull Miller, such as her hand-written genealogy, documentation on family furniture and artifacts, and the notes that she had tied to bundles of letters in this archive. Also found here are three folders of essays and poetry by Mrs. Miller, some of which was published in religious journals including The Christian Register, Christendom, and Spirit. Miscellaneous ephemera folder holds trade cards from Albany and New York firms, and a copy of a Louis Prang children's booklet, Red Riding Hood (Boston: 1863).

Series III. FINANCIAL PAPERS (two boxes) contains bills, receipts and other financial papers of John I. Van Alstyne, his wife Mary Ashley Van Alstyne, and six of their children. John Van Alstyne was a farmer and merchant in two different partnerships at different times. He was involved in the commerce of his small community of Schodack Landing, lending money, taking mortgages, dealing in property exchanges and running a general store. His devotion to his children's education is evident in the numbers of receipts for books, periodicals, music lessons and tuition. The files also hold invoices and receipts for the family's food, clothing and amenities. There is a small collection of expense records for the firm of Schemerhorn and Van Alstyne, as well as a group of documents and correspondence relating to the estate of John Van Alstyne.

Series IV. PHOTOGRAPHS (four boxes) holds images of the family members in a variety of formats, including daguerreotypes, ambrotypes, tintypes, albumen prints and snapshots. Most are identified and came to the Library already labelled by Albertine Hull Miller. A series of nine real photo postcards records the village and area around Schodack Landing in the early twentieth century.

Series V. SCRAPBOOKS (one box) holds three albums put together by Albertine Hull Miller during the period 1877-1898. The dates of the scrapbooks were established by inscriptions in or on the books, or dates appearing on tradecards pasted within.
